CALL FOR PAPERS

Sponsored By:
Committee on Ecology and Transportation (ADC30)

91st ANNUAL MEETING
January 22-26, 2012 • Washington, DC

Putting Innovation and People to Work

The National Academies of Science Transportation Research Board’s Committee on Ecology and Transportation (ADC30) is inviting papers for the 91st Annual Meeting in Washington, DC, January 22-26, 2012.

ADC30 is seeking papers that highlight applied research and innovations in transportation planning, design, policy, maintenance and operations as it relates to the field of ecology and transportation.

Topics of interest to ADC30 include, but are not limited to:

- Effects of transportation maintenance on wildlife habitat or water quality;
- Cost effective environmental maintenance and asset management for transportation;
- Habitat defragmentation: transportation corridor crossings for fish and wildlife;
- Design principles for aquatic habitat and stream restoration and improvement;
- Use of environmental indicators to assess ecosystem conditions and capabilities;
- Tools and measurement for improving the effectiveness of mitigation and ecological sustainability;
- The effects and mitigation of construction and operational sound on fish and wildlife resources.

PAPER SUBMITTAL DEADLINE August 1, 2011

Information for Paper Submittal:

Interested authors should submit papers between June 1, 2011 and August 1, 2011 for consideration by the sponsoring committee. Submitters will be notified if their paper is accepted for the TRB 2012 Annual Meeting by October 15, 2011.

Submitted papers should meet TRB specifications as listed on the TRB website: www.trb.org/AnnualMeeting. Authors should indicate that papers are being submitted in response to the 2012 Committee on Ecology and Transportation (ADC30) Call for Papers.

Accepted papers will be presented at either a podium session or a poster session and will be considered for publication in the Transportation Research Record.

For further information contact:

Alex Levy, Committee Chair
alex.levy@arcadis-us.com